"Discovery Park" BNL's new vision for the apartment area

So now that the perfunctory welcome blog post has been posted below, let's get straight to some important business. One of the big items the UEC works on is trying to improve onsite housing at the lab (or at least mitigating its decline), so I was very interested when the following notice came through about a meeting to discuss the labs vision for renovating the apartment area at the lab.

Presentation About Discovery Park on Wednesday, 9/25

Discovery Park is a new vision for Brookhaven Lab's apartment area and plans for this transformation are an exciting look to the Lab's future. All are invited to learn more about Discovery Park during a brown-bag lunch presentation with Assistant Laboratory Director for Facilities & Operations Lanny Bates on Wednesday, Sept. 25, at noon in the newly renovated Physics Seminar Room (Bldg. 510).

Unfortunately I was on travel and couldn't make it to the meeting but the plans were written up in the "Monday Memo" which is disseminated to lab employees every Tuesday (just kidding). So I'd like to share with our users the labs vision.

Et Voila! Here is the nice artists rendition of the apartment area.

for-profit organizations, a new science education facility called the "Portal to Discovery" would greatly expand OEP's capabilities—including the existing Science Learning Center—which already hosts more than 40,000 students each year.

Will you need to go through security to get in to Discovery park?

Hello world. Th... 2

Hello world. The UEC is blogging.

Welcome to the blog for the RHIC and AGS Users Group and the Users' Executive Committee. Our purpose is to provide a communication channel between the Laboratory administration and those who use BNL's nuclear, high-energy, and heavy-ion, radiobiological, and testing facilities. You can read more in our charter. and on our website.

The purpose of this blog is to disseminate information important to the users, to allow users to communicate between each other and with the Users Executive Committee (UEC). The UEC has regular meetings with the lab management and can and has affected important change in policies that affect the users.

You can find out more about what we do on the UEC by reviewing the talk given by Mei Bai at the last annual users meeting. And because a blog post is boring without some sort of image, here is one of Mei's slides with photos of the chairs for 2012-2013: Peter Paul and Mei. As always, please feel free to comment below.

For now, only the person logged in to the rhic.uec google account can make new posts. But we can discuss opening this up to other members of the UEC.

Follow-up

- Link it to a facebook account?
- What policy for who can make posts?
- monitor spam, bots, and trolls
- spread the word (hit the mailing lists, facebook)
- keep updating: next post on shutdown updates (especially since the lab uses the Monday memo not available outside the lab)
- then a post to ask for ideas about the RHIC/NUFO display
- post to advertise the UEC open forum meeting
